THINGS YOU
NEED TO KNOW

MATT BURKE, SPORTS EDITOR

The concussion crisis in the sport of football is very real, as Kristin Toussaint underscores today on page 4. Having played high school football, I know how scary helmet-to-helmet blows can be. Now having two very young sons, I would not allow either of them to play youth football (it's borderline criminal at this point, based on all the findings) and would only allow them to play at the high school level unless there were some radical safety changes over the next 15 years.

WELCOME TO
METRO BOSTONTRUMP BLASTS 'LEAK' OF
MUELLER QUESTIONS

President Donald Trump on Tuesday criticized U.S. media reports that U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller has compiled a list of more than 40 questions to ask the president as part of his probe into Russia's election meddling. Mueller's list of at least four dozen questions include ones on Trump's ties to Russia and others to determine whether the president obstructed the inquiry itself, the New York Times reported late Monday. The Wall Street Journal also reported the potential queries. Mueller is probing Russia's alleged interference in the 2016 presidential election, whether Moscow colluded with the Trump campaign and if the president has unlawfully tried to obstruct the investigation. Russia has denied meddling in the U.S. election, while Trump has said there was no collusion and that the probe should end. "So disgraceful that the questions concerning the Russian Witch Hunt were 'leaked' to the media. No questions on collusion," Trump wrote in one post on Twitter. "It would seem very hard to obstruct justice for a crime that never happened?" Trump said in another. Under federal law, obstruction of justice is the act of intentionally impeding judicial proceedings.

MASS FARMERS CAN NOW
APPLY TO GROW HEMP

While the Cannabis Control Commission begins accepting applications to grow and sell marijuana, the Department of Agricultural Resources is now accepting applications to grow the same plant for very different purposes. Farmers in Massachusetts can now apply to grow, process and sell hemp, which comes from the cannabis plant but does not contain enough of the psychoactive component THC to cause impairment. Hemp is most commonly used as a fiber or seed, but can also be turned into an oil that contains CBDs, which are thought to have medical uses. Massachusetts environmental officials announced a new hemp policy on Monday and made license applications available to farmers who want to begin growing hemp. Growing hemp for industrial purposes was made explicitly legal in the legal marijuana laws approved by voters in 2016 and then the Legislature. "The introduction of industrial hemp to the Massachusetts agricultural industry will create new locally grown products and provide economic and job opportunities in rural Massachusetts," Energy and Environmental Affairs Secretary Matthew Beaton said Monday.

DAY DEMONSTRATIONS IN PARIS

3 Vehicles are burning as thousands of people take to the streets during the May Day demonstrations on May 1, 2018, in Paris, France. This month celebrates the 50th anniversary of May '68, when France saw millions of students and striking workers come onto the streets in demonstrations that changed the country.

FACEBOOK TO LAUNCH ITS FIRST DATING SERVICE

4 Facebook Inc. will offer its first dating service, Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg said on Tuesday, signaling the entry of the world's largest social network into a growing market that sent shares of established dating site operators tumbling. Zuckerberg told software developers at Facebook's annual F8 conference that a dating service would be a natural fit for a company that specializes in connecting people online. "There are 200 million people on Facebook that list themselves as single, so clearly there's something to do here," Zuckerberg said. Facebook users have been able reveal on the network whether they are single or in a relationship since it first went live in February 2004. Zuckerberg said Facebook was building the dating service with an emphasis on privacy, a sensitive subject for people who use online dating and for Facebook as the company reels from a scandal over its handling of personal information. A dating service could increase the time people spend on Facebook and be a "big problem" for competitors such as Match Group Inc., said James Cordwell, an analyst at Atlantic Equities.

POMPEO PROMISES NEW STATE DEPT 'SWAGGER'

5 Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, arriving for his first day at the State Department, said on Tuesday he would help the U.S. diplomatic corps in "getting back our swagger" but offered few details about his plans for the agency. Pompeo, who was confirmed last week in his role before immediately setting off to meet with allies in Europe and the Middle East, avoiding the customary first day at the State Department, joked that he now held the record for the longest trip to the first day of work. "I talked about getting back our swagger, and I'll fill in what I mean by that, but it's important. The United States diplomatic corps needs to be in every corner, every stretch of the world, executing missions on behalf of this country and it is my humble, noble undertaking to achieve that," Pompeo said to loud applause from several hundred diplomatic staff. In the Trump administration, the State Department has been shaken and demoralized by the departures of many senior diplomats and a hiring freeze, and has found itself sidelined by the White House on foreign policy. Pompeo's remarks were brief and without any detail on possible changes in store for the department.

New data: Playing youth football leads to earlier CTE symptoms

Researchers at Boston University looked at the connection between starting the game before the age of 12 and the onset of signs of the condition.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

It's now no secret that the hits most NFL players sustain during football games could lead to chronic traumatic encephalopathy, the degenerative brain disease known as CTE that causes memory loss, aggression, confusion and more.

But it's not just those tackles in a national stadium that can put a player at risk. Playing youth football before the age of 12 could lead to an earlier onset of the cognitive and emotional symptoms associated with CTE, according to a new report.

Researchers at Boston University School of Medicine and VA Boston Healthcare System released a study this week looking at 211 football players who were diagnosed with CTE after death, and the effects of youth football on that outcome.

Those who began playing tackle football before 12 saw CTE symptoms appearing an average of 13 years earlier than those who didn't.

Every year younger that someone began to play football predicted earlier onset of cognitive issues, like memory loss, by 2.4 years and behavioral and mood problems, like aggression and depression, by 2.5 years, according to the report.

Though playing football at a younger age was associated with these symptoms appearing earlier, it wasn't associated with a more severe form

The younger someone starts playing tackle football, the earlier cognitive and behavior symptoms of CTE appear, according to a BU study. C. WATTS/RUCKER CREATIVE COMMONS of CTE. The main finding was that starting tackle football at a younger age influences when those symptoms first appear, and also puts players at risk of other brain diseases, like Alzheimer’s and dementia.

“Youth exposure to repetitive head impacts in tackle football may reduce one’s resiliency to brain diseases later in life including, but not limited to, CTE,” said Ann McKee, MD, chief of Neuropathology at Boston VA Healthcare System and Director of BU’s CTE Center, in a statement. “It makes common sense that children, whose brains are rapidly developing, should not be hitting their heads hundreds of times per season.”

Of the 211 CTE-diagnosed brains studied, 76

were amateur football players and 135 played at the professional level. The brains were donated to the VA-BU-Concussion Legacy Foundation Brain Bank. Researchers conducted phone interviews with the friends and families of those players to determine if they displayed such cognitive, behavior and mood symptoms and when they first began.

Boston is the second most millennial city

There's a lot of research about the impact of millennials, from what industries they're "killing" with their spending habits to what jobs they're bolstering as they take over the workforce. But where, exactly, are all these millennials living?

Politico wanted to go beyond the too-familiar millennial-focused "gimmicky pseudo-data about, say, avocado consumption," and look into how this age group is impacting the country's urban centers.

San Francisco is No. 1 on Politico's most-millennial cities list, with 23 percent of the California city's population made up of adults between the ages of 25 and 34. Boston came in second and Washington rounded out the top three.

Politico's rankings took into account a few

A new report shows which cities millennials are moving to and impacting. STOCK different factors. In comparing cities of more than 200,000 people, the report focused on the percentage of millennials within that population, their economic output, transportation and the recent arrival of millennials to that city from other areas.

In Boston, adults between 25 and 34 years old make up 23 percent of the population, and 15 percent of those millennials have moved to Boston in the last year.

Millennials in the Hub have a per-capita gross domestic product of $78,000, meaning their economic output into the city (this was below the San Francisco figure of $87,000), and have a median household income of $74,000 (below San Francisco, which saw a whopping median income of $120,000). KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

Rebel's Guild channels Boston's revolutionary spirit

Since Boston is often called the birthplace of the American Revolution, it's only appropriate that the Revere Hotel Boston Common pay homage to the city's rebellious past with its new bar and restaurant.

Rebel's Guild, which officially opened on the anniversary of Paul Revere's midnight ride earlier this spring, hopes to channel the spirit of our Founding Fathers with its funky decor and menu offerings. Located at what used to be the old Emerald Lounge, Rebel's Guild blends modern bar aesthetics with artwork that embraces Boston revolutionary history.

The 4,500-square-foot space is adorned with a copper masonic eye and tiered chandeliers that were inspired by colonial craftsmen, as well as murals that blend scenes from events like the Boston Massacre with contemporary street style. Local artist Bruce Rosenbaum has also created a massive cannon that sits in the middle of the restaurant. Guests can enjoy food and drinks at the white marble bar and lounge area located near the entrance, or in the 145-seat dining room.

Executive chef Sean Dutson has created a menu filled with smaller, shareable bites of "New England comfort food" with an "edgy twist" that are in line with the venue's rebellious scenery. Visitors can expect classics like baked beans, clam chowder and burgers, plus more adventurous takes on fan-favorite dishes.

Highlights include crispy buffalo oysters, which are served over seaweed salad with carrot and blue cheese, and the smoked duck breast crostini, which are topped with wild Maine blueberry compote and crème fraîche. And it wouldn't be a Boston restaurant without a few crustacean options. Dutson has created a lobster-filled fritter made with vanilla-honey butter and thyme, as well as lobster bites, a smaller version of the traditional Maine lobster roll.

"When I cook, I cook for myself," Duston tells

As far as the drinks go, Rebel's Guild's libations are also heavily influenced by the Revolutionary War theme, such as the large lineup of tea-infused spirits that harken back to the Boston Tea Party. Many of the cocktails are named after prominent American rebels as well, such as the Paul's Punch, a tiki-style drink that features a mix of Newport Distilling Company's Thomas Tew Silver Rum, Thomas Tew Amber Rum, Falernum, and fresh pineapple, and the Henry Price, an homage to the "Father of Freemasonry" made with Bulleit Rye, egg white, fresh raspberries, simple syrup and lemon.

Patti LaBelle's recipe for a Monte Cristo sandwich

Take your sandwich game up a notch with this awesome recipe by Patti LaBelle.

The "Godmother of Soul" turned queen of the kitchen has shared with us her take on the classic Monte Cristo sandwich, which she concocted as part of her partnership with Hood Calorie Countdown. The dish is a sweet take on the French croque monsieur, which is basically a fried ham and cheese sandwich.

Monte Cristo recipes usually add some extra flavor via preserves and powdered sugar. The singer's version of the sandwich utilizes sugar-free raspberry jam.

PROVIDED

Ingredients:

- 8 thin slices of bread
- 4 ounces of thinly sliced Swiss cheese
- 4 ounces of thinly sliced ham
- 2 large eggs
- 1 large egg white
- 1/2 cups of Calorie Countdown 2% Reduced Fat Dairy

Beverage

- 1/4 tsp. of fresh ground black pepper
- 1/8 tsp. of ground nutmeg
- Sugar-free raspberry jam (optional)
- Powdered sugar (optional)

Directions:

Layer four slices of bread with the cheese and ham. Place remaining bread slices on top. In a shallow dish, whisk together the eggs, egg white, Calorie Countdown, pepper and nutmeg. Dip sandwiches in the egg mixture, soaking each side for 20 seconds. Coat a large skillet with cooking spray over medium-high heat. Add sandwiches and cook, turning once, until golden brown on both sides, about 8 to 10 minutes total.

Preparation Tip:

Cut sandwiches in half. If desired, dust with powdered sugar and enjoy with jam, the traditional way to serve Monte Cristo sandwiches.

Ruth Bader Ginsburg is the hero we all need right now

IMAGES FROM GETTY

The documentary "RBG" shows us why.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

There are many reasons why Ruth Bader Ginsburg is an inspiration to millions. At 85 years young she's still fighting for equality. She even visits a gym regularly to keep herself in peak condition so that she can continue her work as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

But Ruth Bader Ginsburg's inspiring story goes much deeper than that, so it's no surprise directors Julie Cohen and Betsy West wanted to turn it into a documentary. I recently talked to the duo about "RBG," and they had nothing but praise for the incredible woman.

When did you become interested in making this documentary?

Betsy: In 2015 we took note of Justice Ginsburg's rise as "the Notorious RBG" and the "Saturday Night Live" impersonations. She was clearly striking a chord with the millennial generation.

We'd both previously interviewed Justice Ginsburg, and we knew there was so much more to her story.

Why has she become so popular?

Julie: Her huge popularity seems to be a combination of a few factors. One of them is just the unlikely-ness of a very tiny, serious-seeming, 85-year-old Jewish grandmother in a judicial robe speaking up and saying things in her court opinions and dissent that young, liberal activists find relatable.

What do you think today's generation can take from Justice Ginsburg?

Betsy: There's a lot to learn about how Ruth Bader Ginsburg has approached challenges throughout her life, both personal and professional. As a brilliant young lawyer coming out of Columbia Law School at the top of her class she couldn't get a job. She became a professor and moved into the area of women's law, at a time when discrimination against women was widespread and just generally accepted. She devised a brilliant legal strategy to take this on. Not yelling and screaming, "Sexism! Sexism!" But by slowly showing the nine male justices on the Supreme Court that this kind of discrimination was unfair under the Constitution.

Did you talk to her about the state of politics?

Julie: There are constraints about what the Justice can talk about. Every conversation was on the record. She did make the case for why she's absolutely capable of ruling fairly on any case that may come before the court in the current administration.

Betsy: She's an optimistic person. At one point she says, "We may be in tough times, but look at how far we've come." She takes the long view of the world.

"RBG" is in theaters May 4.

Bruins return to Garden with home ice advantage

The B's did their job in Tampa Bay in swiping one of the two games.

RICH SLATE
sports@metro.us

When you win a Game 1 on the road, you naturally tend to get greedy and also want to do the same thing a few days later. Boston destroyed Tampa Bay, 6-2, in Game 1 on Saturday afternoon so you had to know that the Lightning would do everything in their power to win Game 2 at Amalie Arena on Monday night. The Lightning win was not without some controversy — as there were several questionable calls by the officials — but regardless, Tampa Bay got what it needed in a 4-2 victory.

The Eastern Conference semifinal series is now tied at one, with Game 3 in Boston on Wednesday (7, NBCSN). Tampa Bay was the No. 1 seed in the East for a reason, and it has already shown in this series that it is anything but a pushover.

"We're in the playoffs, you're not going to walk through teams," said Boston left wing Brad Marchand, who had a pair of assists in Game 2. "We have home-ice advantage now, we'll go home. This game's over, it's done with and we'll move on."

You can't put together two more different performances in back-to-back contests than the ones turned in by Tampa Bay's young center Brayden Point. His line had the unenviable task of trying to slow down Boston's top line of Marchand, Patrice Bergeron and David Pastrnak, and in Game 1 they failed miserably at it with Point finishing with a ghastly plus-minus of minus-5. Lightning head coach Jon Cooper surprisingly stuck with that impossible matchup, and on Monday it worked out much better for the home team as Point piled up a career-high four points with a goal and three assists. Tampa Bay needed that unlikely production, too, as its two biggest stars in Nikita Kucherov and Steven Stamkos are both scoreless in the first two games.

After a slow start in Game 1, Boston doubled

Bruins goaltender Tuukka Rask has a 2.84 Goals Against Average so far this postseason, which is actually his lowest mark in five career playoff stretches.

down on that poor approach as Tampa Bay outshot them 10-0 over the first 13 plus-minutes and grabbed a 1-0 lead on rookie forward Yanni Gourde's goal. The Bruins bounced back though with rookie defenseman Charlie McAvoy's first career NHL playoff goal late in the first but other than that their offense was stuck in neutral most of the night. Their second goal was a bit of a gift as Lightning goaltender Andrei Vasilevskiy (18 saves) let in a routine shot by defenseman Torey Krug with 4:02 left to play in regulation to cut Tampa Bay's lead to 3-2. Obviously, it's hard to win when your forwards don't score any goals and it's not like Boston didn't have any chances as its power play went 0-for-3, including a two-man advantage for 1:45 in the first.

Wishy-washy Brady

Tom Brady vaguely answered many a question about his future to Jim Gray this week, in one breath saying that he wants to spend more time with his wife and children, and in the next saying he is totally committed to playing football into his mid-40s. "Part of this offseason for me is certainly about still preparing for what's ahead in my next journey, my next mountain to climb with this group of teammates," Brady said. "But it's also [acknowledging] that a lot of people are getting the short end of the stick in my life — certainly my wife and my kids." GETTY IMAGES

Aries Negotiate on your own behalf. When faced with obstacles, use your intelligence and quick wit to turn the tables. A little romance will improve your life.

Taurus Work and advancement are favored. Don't shy away from taking the reins or putting in more hours if it will help you gain the respect required to reach your goals.

Gemini Emotional matters will keep you on your toes. Partnerships are best handled with caution. If something sounds suspicious, speak up and ask questions.

Cancer Offer help, but don't let anyone take advantage of you. A problem with someone who tries to take charge and speak on your behalf will come to a head.

Leo You'll be keen to try something new, but make sure you can afford the overall expense involved before you sign up. A positive physical change can be made without overspending.

Virgo Dealing with domestic matters, home renovations or expenses will cause stress if you are sharing the costs with someone who tends to be extravagant.

Libra Share your feelings and be sensitive to the needs of others. If you are willing to compromise, you will find a solution, even if you are dealing with a stubborn individual.

Scorpio Keep busy, move about and be willing to listen to reason. If you are too insistent or take on too much, you will not reach your target. Keep your life simple.

Sagittarius Concentrate on what's important. Don't exaggerate or be evasive when asked for facts to back up your claims. If you want to get things done, you'll have to get along.

Capricorn A steady pace toward your goal will be your best bet. If someone veers off in a different direction, don't feel obligated to tag along.

Aquarius Finish what you start and live up to your word. As long as you stick to your agenda and are productive, no one will have the right to complain.

Pisces False information will be offered. Rely on your intelligence and trustworthy people to avoid being led astray. A financial opportunity looks promising. EUGENIA LAST
